Swearing at Hello Girl May Be Costly to Doctor

Candidate Said Ugly Things Over the Telephone When Seeking Election Returns, and Is Later Presented With Bill.

DES MOINES, Sept. 2.—Dr. H. P. Hanson, Dr., to Miss Alice McKee: For saying "Why in h— don't you give me my number?" $1,000. For threatening to throw her out of the office, $1,000. For saying "D— it, don't you know anything?" $1,000.

The above is the bill that Miss Alice McKee, a pretty telephone operator at Cambridge, Iowa, has presented to Dr. H. P. Hanson, a prominent physician of that place, and late candidate for coroner, in the form of a petition for damages.

The sheriff served the notice, and the doctor was even angrier than when the girl failed to get the telephone number when he wanted to find out for certain whether he had been elected for coroner. And when she did get the number and he learned the disappointing news, the girl claims he swore even more loudly and threatened to throw her out of the office. The case will come up for trial in Boone at the next term of court.

Celestials Burn Joss To Goddess of Liberty

Chinese Crew Admires Her Because She Keeps Her Mouth Shut, and Calls Her "No. 1 Topside Melican Joss."

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The orthodox Chinese of the crew of the Warrack line tea steamer Braemar, which anchored off the Statue of Liberty, on Saturday afternoon and went to dock yesterday morning, mistook the bronze young woman for the image of a divine being of the Orient.

The moment the big tea carrier let her mudhook stir up the American fishes that swim around the base of the Statue of Liberty every Chinik of the nautical thirty-seven in the crew piled up on deck, each with four bunches of joss sticks in his hand. They kowtowed to the bronze lady and started the joss sticks going.

The skipper, Capt. S. L. Saxony, did not understand the sudden eruption of yellow folk from forecastle and engine hold, and he asked his first officer what it meant. Mr. High Wind was called to explain and he said the Chinese had made up their minds when they sighted the giant form of Miss Liberty from the Narrows that she belonged to the order of Buddha, she was so quiescent and big. If she had got down off her base and walked off toward Manhattan and sat on the top of the Singer tower they would not have thought very much of it. But when she persisted in just being still—not even making a political oration—she decided that she must have unwonted power as a joss, or, as Mr. High Wind remarked, she must be a "No. 1." Chinese believed in a lady who keeps her mouth shut, which, he remarked, was more than some American statesmen knew how to do.

It was not until all the joss sticks had been consumed utterly and the nostrils of Miss Liberty, according to Mr. High Wind, were seen to quiver with pleasurable emotion, that the Chinamen consented to go below. Then the light had just bloomed in her lofty torch, and her Chinese worshippers thought that was a good enough candle to show them to. They hustled to their bunks after more kowtowing of the most deferential and superstitious sort.

DISTRICT SHOOTERS REACH SEA GIRT

Regular Service Teams on Hand Also for Individual Matches.

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 2.—In threatening weather the New Jersey Rifle Association's tournament opened this morning. The district representatives who came from Camp Perry, Ohio, arrived this morning and joined those who reached camp last evening from Washington.

The district team was, excepting the Jerseyans, the first State delegation to take possession. The Massachusetts team got in at noon and the Army, Infantry, Cavalry, and Marine Corps teams this afternoon.

Seven Jersey regimental and troop teams came last night. Individual matches only were on the program today.

"SCAB" BRICKLAYER GIVEN FINE OF $200

Herbert Wilson, the non-union bricklayer, who was treated last Saturday night while carrying a razor, was found guilty of carrying concealed weapons by Judge Brady in the Police Court this morning, and was sentenced on two counts, his total fine amounting to $200, or eleven months and twenty-nine days jail.

In his defense Wilson claimed that he had been brought in the barroom by union men who gave him several drinks. He declared that he heard them say several times that they were going to "do" him because he was a "scab." He claimed that the razor was placed in his pocket.

On cross-examination it developed that Wilson was sentenced to $50 or five months by the late Judge O'Neal August 13, on a similar charge.

THE MISERABLE LONDON SLUMS.

A group of dirty fellows stands at the street corner, against the background of a public house. You see that in New York and you see it in London, but you do not see it anywhere save in the Anglo-Saxon world. The German and the Latin folk, but only those of our breed, in gloomy fellowship, at street corners. These fellows of brick lane are typical of the race. Their hands are in their pockets. Their caps are pulled down over their eyes. Their shoulders are hunched up. They are mean and sullen and wicked.

An old woman in cap and apron comes from the public house; she is bent and weakened; she carries a wretched little thing that seems to belong to the human species, an idiot, almost bald, that rattles a sort of wooden ball, filled with nuts or pebbles. A man crosses the road. Like all the others he is small, they breed the Londoner big and tall and wholesome in the West; here the Englishmen are little and warped and stunted—he is swallowed by the black mouth of a lodging-house. Go you in after him. There are half a thousand such places where you may get a four-pennorth of sleep. Through a stone hall you come into the living-room, where at night the men sleep on the benches. At one side an iron sink with a dripping faucet. Beyond, the dormitory, filled with beds, where adults and children sleep together—Vance Thompson, an Outing.

LIPTON, AMERICAN BOUND, IRISH WAGHTSMAN SAY

DUBLIN, Sept. 2.—The mystery attending the movements of Sir Thomas Lipton, who is reported to have been seen at the yacht Erin, is a topic of discussion among the Irish here. The Erin returned to Dublin from the United States on Thursday, when at midnight she steamed northward, supposedly for Dublin.

She is not here and the belief now is that she has sailed for New York.

A TERRIBLE MOMENT.

Mr. Goldberg (as the package is opened) each got a low, meandering track and dot rich dog Schlickstein—sending merriment and a gold fish for a golden wedding present—Puck.
